Message from the Y Board Chair

by Susan Murakami, Y Board Chair

Welcome everyone to the new school year! The Caltech Y is starting off the year with an impressive program including the annual Y hike and numerous other events designed to welcome new and returning students to campus. The Board of Directors of the Caltech Y has also just held its annual Board Retreat (the first board meeting of the academic year) in which the Board members, the student ExComm, and the Y staff worked together to outline very specific goals and objectives for the Y for this year and for the next few years.

We have our work cut out for us this year. In this time of economic uncertainty, the students of the ExComm have done a superb job of taking a hard look at the programs they would like to run and adjusting the budget to make sure that we can continue the Y programs.

It was exceptionally heartening to hear the students at the retreat tell us why the Y has made a difference in their lives, how it has enhanced their experience at Caltech, and to watch them take charge of the programs that matter to them. This is the Caltech Y in action: providing opportunities for Caltech students to prepare themselves to be extraordinary and contributing citizens of the world. This is why the Friends of the Caltech Y exists and why we depend so much on your support.

We are grateful for all the support of the Friends of the Y and hope you continue that support. This year we will be concentrating on expanding the number of Friends of the Y, and to that end, we have changed the tasks and structure of the Board committees a little to help us accomplish that goal.

As always, we appreciate any suggestions or help all our Friends can give us. Please let the office know if you would like to help out!

I am fortunate to follow in Carolyn Ash’s capable footsteps. I am also fortunate to be working with an enthusiastic and hardworking Board. At the retreat, we made significant progress in the tasks we have set for this year to reach out to new Friends, both on campus and in the community. If you have any friends you think would make good Friends of the Y, please bring them to one or some of our events, starting with the Golf Tournament on October 9th, and let them see for themselves what a wonderful organization this is.

I know this will be a great, if challenging, year and am looking forward to working with ALL of you!

Executive Director’s Report

by Athena Castro, Y Executive Director

October is an exciting time at the Caltech Y! We have begun a new academic and fiscal year, and we celebrate 93 years of enriching student life on campus. Students are back and we are looking forward to a new year of programming. The year is brimming with possibilities!

But first, I want to take a moment to thank all of you who have contributed so generously to the Caltech Y this past year. I am so encouraged and so grateful to those of you who actively support our mission. Thanks to you, we ended the year on a strong footing. We would not have been able to do this without you!

We still have financial challenges ahead, but we are forging onward and the Y Board of Directors is taking this opportunity to strengthen and broaden our base of support. I look forward to your continued participation in Caltech Y through the Friends program. As I have said before, while I am not confident in a quick economic turnaround, I am confident in our Board, students, and Friends. I am, therefore, facing this new year with renewed hope and enthusiasm. I’m ready for 2009-2010 – Happy New Year! Here’s to 93 years – still going strong!

Golf Tournament & Silent Auction

It’s not too late to sign up for the annual Caltech Y Golf Tournament on Friday, October 9th! There is still room if you want to join us for a round of golf or, if you like, just join us for the fun and exciting dinner and auction.

Please contact the Y Office ASAP if you would like to be part of this fun-filled day in support of the Caltech Y!

First Friends Dinner

Save the date for the first Friends dinner of the year, which has been scheduled for Tuesday, November 17th. Professor Ken Pickar, who teaches the popular E/ME 105 course, will be introducing the team from Intelligent Mobility International, a group of Caltech alumni building wheelchairs out of bike parts and tackling the issue of mobility in developing countries. Mark your calendars! Invitations will be mailed soon!

Greg Fletcher Honored

Caltech Y staff member, Greg Fletcher was honored by the Caltech Center for Diversity in June. Greg received the Dr. Fred Shair Award in recognition of his commitment to program diversity.

This award, aptly named in honor of Dr. Fred Shair, Caltech Y Board member and founder of the SURF program, is presented to staff and faculty who spend time outside of their assigned responsibilities to support, build and/or design programs and programmatic infrastructures that promote the inclusion and retention of underrepresented, underserved and minority students on campus.

Congratulations to Greg! He is well deserving of this award.

Welcome Kevin Nguyen!

The new Y Student Activities Coordinator

Hi! My name is Kevin Nguyen and I am excited to be the new Student Activities Coordinator for the Caltech Y. I’m originally from Houston, TX and I received a BS degree in Biology at Baylor University. I was on the pre-medicine route, but I had a change of heart and decided to pursue a career in education.

In my deliberation towards what kind of level of education I wanted to be a part of, I chose to teach English in Thailand after I graduated. After that, I had the travel bug and wanted to explore and see the west coast. As a result, I became a graduate student at Azusa Pacific University acquiring an MS degree in college counseling and student development.

In my first year as a graduate student, I worked in the Career Services office at APU. I coordinated and facilitated three career planning/development events on campus and did intake counseling to students who needed assistance in their occupational endeavors.

Recently this summer, I was a graduate assistant for the New Student Orientation program at Trinity University in San Antonio, TX. I helped plan and coordinate the 6-day orientation program that TU has for the incoming freshmen class this last August.

I believe that student affairs is a field that I can grow and thrive in and I am looking forward to gaining a lot of experience and insight from my tenure here at Caltech.

Annual Yosemite and Caltech Centennial Grove Trip
Photos provided by Ilia Shadrin and Himanshu Mishra

by Leon Liu ’10, ExComm

From June 24 - 26, a group of 32 Caltech students and staff participated in the annual Caltech Y & Gnome Club Yosemite/Centennial Grove Camping and Hiking Trip, co-sponsored by the Caltech Alumni Association.

The group departed from Caltech in the early morning of the 24th in a bus and arrived in the Yosemite National Park in the afternoon. They spent the rest of the afternoon exploring the Mariposa Grove before settling in the Wawona Campground for the night.

On the third day, the group left for the Caltech Centennial Grove in the Sierra National Forest. With the help of Tom Mannion, Don Pinkerton, and several other Caltech alumni and associates, the participants learned about the history of the grove and succeeded in locating the giant sequoias dedicated to the “giants” of the early institute: Throop, Millikan, Noyes, Hale and Fleming. After some more hiking on the “Shadow of the Giants” trail, the group bused back to Caltech and arrived in the late afternoon. The participants greatly enjoyed the experience.

Centennial Grove History
by Marian Combs Nichols, Y Friend

Following in the footsteps of my father, Ted Combs ’27, this year I presented the group with the background of the Caltech Centennial Grove, which is situated within a larger area called the Nelder Grove.

The origin of the Grove's name came from a failed gold rush prospector, John Nelder. Since the students had learned a little bit about John Muir's influence in preventing logging in the Yosemite area, I highlighted the connection between the two men: John Muir, while sauntering through the Grove, came upon John Nelder's cabin, where the two men introduced themselves to each other and began a lasting friendship. Many people know John Muir wrote prolifically about the Sierra, some of which included words about John Nelder.

A piece of John Nelder’s homestead land was given to Caltech by Arthur Fleming, who had inherited his father-in-law’s lumber company in that area, thereby making Arthur wealthy enough to benefit Caltech in many ways.

Daddy was Secretary of the Caltech Board of Trustees under Lee DuBridge at the time, and was determined to find the acreage that the Board was paying property taxes on since Board members had no clue. After many trips he found the property, and the acreage was aptly named Centennial Grove since it was soon to be Caltech's Centennial Year. How propitious! In 1991, Daddy led the dedication of the Grove, assisted by LeVal Lund ’47.

I first made the trip in 1991 with my father, and yearly with him from that time on. After Daddy died in 1999, LeVal insisted I make the trip with him and say a few words. LeVal and I made the trip together for some six memorable years.

[Editor’s note: LeVal died in 2007, just after being elected to the Caltech Y Board, which he had so looked forward to serving on. The first trip after his passing was dedicated to his memory; however, the trip remains named for Ted Combs.]

Food Inc
Students viewed the film, Food Inc, on June 29 at the Laemmle Theater in Pasadena.

Garbage Warrior
by Greg Fletcher, Y Student Activities & Community Services
Director
On July 9, a small group gathered in Sturdivant Lecture Hall to watch and discuss the film Garbage Warrior. The political battles, environmental impact, life style choices of the architect/activists, and the use of the structures over seas in disaster relief efforts made for interesting dialog.

Annual Caltech Y Huntington Tea
by Xida Zheng ’12, ExComm
The Annual Caltech Y Huntington Tea was held August 9. Our goal this year was to increase the number of faculty and staff attending the tea to facilitate student-faculty interaction and enrich student experience. With the help of Michelle Jiang ’11 and Elaine To ’10, we personally invited over thirty professors and administrators.
In total, eight guests, fifteen undergraduate, and twenty-five graduate students attended the tea. The eight guests were the new MOSH Geoff and Karen Blake, Tom Mannion, Melany
Hunt, Steven Frautschi, Michael Elowitz, his wife and a visiting professor. I am glad to say that we had a guest at almost every table.
We enjoyed an assortment of delicious English teas, finger sandwiches, fruits and deserts. The conversation was light and interesting. I learned about hiking and traveling from the experience of Professor Frautsch and the other students at the table, grad and undergrad. After the tea, we were free to explore the beautiful gardens of the Huntington.
Special thanks to the MOSH's office and the Alumni Association for funding. We decided to hold the tea during the summer again next year, and we aim to increase the number of students and faculty participating.

New Student Orientation Events

Annual Y Backpacking Trip
by Greg Fletcher, Y Student Activities & Community Services
Director
This year, 19 new and returning students gathered at the Caltech Y to pack up for one last adventure of the summer and a chance to kick off their orientation to Caltech on the Annual Y Backpacking Trip to the Sierra.
Participants attended an orientation the day before departing covering the basics of safe existence in the wilderness.
Then, everyone packed their clothes, food, and equipment for the week in order to facilitate an early start. There was some anxiety and much anticipation as participants who ranged from novices to experienced enthusiasts prepared for the trip.
This adventure was in the Sierra Neveda Mountains near Mammoth Lakes, CA. – five magnificent days in the wilderness (Sept 18-22). The 19 were divided into two hiking groups in order limit their impact on the environment and to maximize the opportunity to get to know a small group of people prior to the rush of the school year.
Once arriving in the Mammoth area,
the teams gathered their wilderness permits and went their separate ways visiting the Devil's Postpile and nu-erous alpine lakes on their travels through the Ansel Adams Wilderness.
Following the trip, the groups gathered for brunch back at the Y to share stories and enjoy a home cooked meal. It was an adventure from start to finish.
Grad Day Hike
by Arthur Chan, Grad Student
On Saturday, Sept 26, the Caltech Y organized a day hike to Mount Lee in Griffith Park as part of orientation for incoming graduate students. We hiked up to the Hollywood sign via Canyon Drive and got an excellent view of Los Angeles. On our way down, we visited Bronson Caves, which was used as the Bat Cave for the classic Batman TV series. Although the weather was hot (a sweltering 100 degrees by the end of the hike), we all (14 participants) enjoyed seeing the Hollywood sign from both behind and in front.

Community Service Trip

by Jonathan Tsai ‘10, ExComm

As part of New Student Orientation, on Sept 28, the Caltech Y led thirteen first year undergraduate and graduate students on a community service trip. We worked in Aveson Charter School where we helped garden and maintain the grounds. We cleared weeds and dead foliage, and planted new flowers and grass. Aveson is dedicated to new methods of education. One of the 5th grade classes planted a garden complete with tomatoes, carrots, squash, and other vegetables. Our group was able to help these students harvest their crop and clear the land for the next year. Our students were lucky enough to taste the harvest (the carrots and peppers were delicious) and thoroughly enjoyed the experience.

We hope to maintain a strong relationship with Aveson and to continue to work with them in the future.

Harbor Kayaking Trip

by Himanshu Mishra, Grad Student

With an energetic group of 46 new students, I had a chance to explore the kayaking scene in the Huntington Beach area on Sept 28. The trip was organized by the Caltech Y as a part of the orientation activities for the incoming students.

The kayaks were offered in single, double, and triple seat formats, and most students teamed up. As expected, they figured out in no time how to maximize the forward force while minimizing the rotation about the center (unless needed)! We enjoyed kayaking for about an hour and, then, on average, ran out of the ATPs and decided to turn back!

After having the Caltech Y special “Subway sandwiches” back at the bus, we all headed towards the beach on the other side of the Pacific Coast Highway. The weather turned out to be just perfect. Some played frisbee, some played card games, but we made sure everyone made a bond with the Pacific ocean by taking a hearty plunge in it. Later, some continued with chatting, or some simply enjoyed the idyllic sight, and the rest napped!

We were back at Caltech around 5 pm, just in time for the students to take showers, if they wished to, and carry on with the next activity!

THE CALTECH Y: YOUR WORLD AWAITS –

by Greg Fletcher, Y Student Activities & Community Services Director

Last year saw a number of ExComm members graduate and move onto grad school or other endeavors – and this year we begin with some away studying abroad – but those that remain are actively planning for the coming year. Up and coming programs include:

Explore LA

The Explore LA Series is continuing with the charge to get Caltech students out to explore and experience all that there is to offer in the greater LA area.

First trips will be the Getty Museum and Pasadena Art Night. The series will continue on a monthly basis through the year.

PALAC

PALAC (Pasadena Area Liberal Arts Center) is also set to continue, coordinated by Y board member Norri Sirri, to provide Caltech students the opportunity to practice valuable presentation skills while serving the community through education on topics within their areas of study.

The first will feature Christina Weng facilitating the discussion, “Dendritic Cells: Messengers of the Human Immune System.”

Life Skills Series

The Life Skill Series strives to give students the skills necessary to thrive in the world outside the ivory tower. It will kick off this month with a session on presentation skills. The series will feature monthly workshops.

SASS

As always, the Social Activism Speaker Series will focus attention on current social and political issues giving students the opportunity to explore how they might shape the world.

SASS is still finalizing its line-up of speakers for the coming year but, confirmed for this month, we have Sakura Kone, Media Coordinator for Common Ground Relief in New Orleans. Kone gained the attention of SASS members who participated in hurricane relief efforts during our New Orleans Alternative Spring Break Trip a couple of years back. He continues to spread the word about the on-going challenges in New Orleans.

Y Outdoors

Following up on the recent new-student orientation events (Annual Y Backpacking Trip, Grad Day Hike and Harbor Kayaking Trip), the Y-Outdoor Committee has its sights set on their next big event – the possibility of a Zion trip in November. In October there are a couple of programs they have lined up:

Full Moon Hikes – Continuing their tradition, Y-Outdoors Committee leaders will be taking students into the local San Gabriel Mountains, if they are open, to hike under the light of the full moon once a month.
Coming Events (continued)

Adventure 101: Great Hikes in the Greater LA Area – Another series set to continue in the 2009-10 year is the Adventure 101 series designed to introduce students to opportunities, resources, and knowledge essential in expanding their adventure repertoire. With funding from the Moore Hufstedler Fund, the Y-Outdoors Committee will be coordinating one talk per month, including the kick off talk highlighting some of the great hiking venues in our local mountains.

Community Service

Many of our on-going service projects, as well as the RISE program, are, of course, up and going again. October will also be an introduction for many students to some new service opportunity partnerships – the Y will be working with students leading ASOSAL Tutoring and a Skid Row Homeless Project. But, introducing students to service is a big part of each new year, including:

Community Service and Advocacy Fair (Nov 6) – Our annual tradition of inviting service agencies to campus to talk with students – is in the works again for this year. We hope to have 20 to 30 different organizations participate this year from on-campus and our local community. As in the past, in addition to the table fair, entertainment and snacks will also be present to entice students to the San Pasqual Mall where they will have an opportunity to learn more about the causes in our community and paths they might be able to take should they be inspired to action with any of the groups.

Cultural Events

The Cultural Programming Group, on which the Y sits, is also lining up some events for the first month of school. In October, we will be supporting efforts of the Caltech Center for Diversity in recognizing Coming Out Day:

Coming Out Week – The Caltech Center for Diversity is taking the lead on a week worth of events raising awareness around National Coming Out Day, including: a table fair featuring the student organization Prism, a speaker addressing “How To Be An Ally”, a movie night (Prayers for Bobby), and a poetry reading. The Y is assisting with the promotion efforts.

Greetings from an Alum

The Role of the Caltech Y in a Grad Student’s Life

By David Gakenheimer, Ph.D. ’69, Friend of the Y

The Caltech Y is generally thought to be an organization for undergraduate students, and it is. But it can play an important role in the life of a grad student as well.

I arrived at Caltech in the fall of 1965 just before classes began. I had difficulty finding a place to stay and ended up renting a few rooms in a house in Altadena owned by an elderly woman. The arrangement was little more than a bedroom and bathroom, and it didn’t feel like much of a home. Thus, I started looking for home comforts and I found them in the Caltech Y’s Winnett Lounge. It was equipped with sofas, television, stereo, pool room and, most of all, companionship. My daily pace quickly became working in my office in Thomas Building from 8 am to 6 pm, eating in the Caltech cafeteria or Burger Continental and, then, retiring to the Winnett Lounge for relaxation. I did this for the three plus years it took me to get my Ph.D. This may seem like an unimportant role for the Caltech Y, but it certainly made it possible for me to get my degree and have some fun as well. Being a grad student is very demanding at Caltech and I wanted to finish quickly, so having an on-campus “oasis” to unwind in was wonderful.

From Winnett Lounge and my Ph.D. in applied mechanics, I went on to work at the Rand Corporation for four years and then Northrop Grumman (and predecessor companies R&D Associates and Logicon) for 34 years where, amongst projects for the Defense Department, I led a research group that invented a computer aided diagnostic (CAD) system for the dental industry for analyzing digital radiographs to find caries (tooth decay). We got a US patent for the invention in 1998 and FDA approval the same year for the product we sell. In 2004, I licensed the technology from Northrop and started my own company to further develop the caries detector, and then sold a greatly improved version to Eastman Kodak. Today I am working for PracticeWorks (exclusive distributor for Kodak Dental Systems) as the product line manager. I still manufacture the product in my home office in Rancho Palos Verdes, CA, and distribute and provide support for it worldwide. My latest “gig” is providing live interactive training over the internet using WebEx and Saba Centra. I also manage a team further developing the product in Taiwan using WebEx.
We are grateful for the continuing support we receive from the Friends of the Caltech Y! Thanks to you we were able to finish the year strong! We couldn’t have done it without you!

Please note that this listing reflects gifts received by the Caltech Y from May 16, 2009 to September 30, 2009. Gifts prior to May 16th were listed in the June newsletter.
